

Out of sight

We know you don't want a hearing solution that gets noticed for its good looks. You don't want it to get noticed, period. At about half the size of the smallest in the ear hearing instrument, Fuse is fully concealed inside your ear, yet fully loaded with technology that lets you experience natural, satisfying listening.

High tech

We cut the size but kept all the sophistication you expect from an advanced hearing instrument, including fully automatic performance, impeccable speech clarity and background noise control. Fuse comes in a choice of technology levels to suit your lifestyle, listening preferences and budget. But don't expect complexity. Just tuck them in your ears and you're good to go.

Feels good

Fuse was made to move. It's the first hearing instrument in the world with an articulating joint – one that flexes with the natural movement of your ear canal when you speak, chew, swallow, yawn – all those everyday things. You can take comfort in that.

Sounds great

When something goes inside your ear, your ear becomes plugged, and suddenly your own voice doesn't sound like you. Not so with Fuse. Its breakthrough design features a pair of openings that allows air to flow freely, which keeps all those sounds in your life sounding more natural. The unique design also makes Fuse even less visible in your ears.

Ready now

This is an instant age, and Fuse fits the times. Once you've decided you're ready to experience more satisfying listening again, Fuse can be professionally fitted to your individual preferences during a single visit to your hearing healthcare professional. And you can spend the time you saved enjoying the sounds you may have been missing.

Design changes everything – Fuse is today's hearing solution. It's the world's first crossover hearing instrument – an evolutionary design that combines the very best characteristics of proven hearing technologies. And it's the ultra-modern way to get back to listening pleasure.

Fully automatic Fuse offers additional control if you want it with the optional Smart Control remote, allowing for discreet situational fine tuning.

Fuse comes in a variety of colors that match with different skin tones and blend naturally within the ear. Fuse is designed for those with mild to moderately severe hearing loss.

Seriously small.
All inside the ear.
